WRITING NEW PAGES IN THE BOOK OF HISTORY OF

La Province de Québec

CANADA

We are welcoming new travellers from every Province in Canada today. Uniformed wartime travellers in khaki, navy, and airforce blue . . . passing through the Province . . . or training here with our own boys in the services who will fight side by side with them.

Many of them are seeing this part of the country for the first time, discovering that the work of war is of first importance everywhere. At home our war workers are backing the fighting forces with production. And our men who fought so courageously at Dieppe and other world fronts, are symbolic of the spirit of all our sons who are today serving Canada.

In welcoming these wartime visitors, we look forward to the years of coming peace, when many will again come to this Province, for holiday, for sport, and for the peacetime opportunities to be found here. To all we say, "A hearty welcome awaits you — come when Victory has been won."

When you decide to paint, after all the cost of the paint itself is not a big item, so you naturally want the best. You want paint that will protect and give you permanence of colour.

Many years of careful research, constant experiments with new developments and a rigid determination to provide the public with long lasting protection and fast colours means that Sherwin-Williams will serve you well.

Your safe plan is to buy Sherwin-Williams. Then you know that you get the finest that the market provides. Paint that goes on easily, covers well, gives long protection and colours that last.

Look for the dealer who displays the famous "cover the earth" sign. He has the right product to suit your purpose. And he will be glad to lend you the "Style Guide", a volume of large colour illustrations to give you plenty of ideas on redecorating.

5705 — The Year of Liberation

On Sunday Eve, September 17, we shall usher in with humbleness of heart and prayer the most hopeful Rosh Hashonah in a decade. The New Year 5705 is destined to be "the year of liberation" when mankind will witness its emancipation from the enslavement of organized Nazism and Fascism, from the dominance of despicable and foul totalitarianism which has caused misery, destruction, and death to millions of humans and which perpetrated the darkest of ages in all human history.

As the armies of the United Nations are now liberating the enslaved of the European Continent and annihilating the German armies, we behold the majesty of the moral law made manifest. "God hath broken the staff of the wicked." Retribution is overtaking the oppressor as it did in the days of Isaiah and throughout history.

As we greet with hope the New Year we can not forget that we have seen the worst of all tragedies for our people during the past few years. Millions of our brethren have been herded into battered, shivering masses, exposed, starved, poisoned, and done to death in the Nazi scientifically-designed "factories of death." In the language of the great prophet of lamentation, Rachel is indeed "weeping for her children" and can hardly accept comfort for "they are gone."

The query now is — how many Jews are left in Europe? It is most tragic that the world's return to a sense of decency comes too late, indeed, too late for millions of our brethren who lie in mass graves on the European Continent. We are hopeful that out of the forests where they have been hiding and out of other retreats such as the underground many will emerge.

At any rate, most of those who have escaped will be but living corpses. And, as if Israel's cup of sorrow hath not already overflown, the Nazi beasts, as a last act of savagery, deported but recently hundreds of thousands of Jews out of Hungary to Poland for another mass slaughter.

It is but natural that we weep amid all the sorrows which darken our memories as we greet the New Year. But we must not give way to our emotions. The New Year calls for the rediscovery of courage and especially the courage to hope. Our hope is strengthened by the fact that as the Allied Armies advance upon Germany the horrible nightmare of Nuremberg Laws, and mass murder experienced by Europe's Jews is quickly receding. Equal political rights will surely be restored to Jews and anti-Jewish measures will be abolished.

Yes, from the standpoint of suffering the year ending has been a most tragic year but from the point of view of achievement an historic year of triumph. That triumph is best symbolized by the historic Rome broadcast on July 29 last. On that day the old synagogue of Rome was just being reopened and rededicated after Hitler's and Mussolini's legions were driven out from this eternal city and as we listened to the choir chanting the ancient hymns and the aged Chief Rabbi Zolli speaking, it all brought back another dramatic story in our checkered career, the rededication of the ancient Temple in Jerusalem by the heroic Maccabeans when the altar was cleansed after the pagans were at last driven from the land.

What a symbol of the triumph of righteousness was marked by this ceremony of the re-opening of the Rome synagogue! We know well the sacred precincts of this sanctuary for on a number of occasions, we worshipped there. Needless to say that our emotions were more than stirred when by the means of the radio we were privileged to share in this historic service of liberation of the Rome Temple. The service is, indeed, a luminous episode in the war of freedom-loving people against barbarism and marks thereby a reversal of history.

For, in the year 70 of the common era, Titus erected an arch in Rome bearing his name to commemorate Israel's supposed destruction. And now in the synagogue within the shadow of the very Arch of Titus — a dramatic service is held 2000 years later, bearing witness to Israel's eternity and Israel's and mankind's triumph over the tyrants such as the Tituses and Hitlers who come upon the world's stage to plague mankind.

Significant in this service of Thanksgiving was the address of the Chief Rabbi Dr. Zolli who thanked the Catholic Church, Pope Pius and the non-Jewish people of Italy who had given aid to the Jews during the Nazi-Fascist rule of the city.

The hopeful factor evidenced in this global war is the comradeship that has grown up between religions, especially the welcoming pro-Jewish attitude evidenced by the Christian Church toward the Jew. In Holland the Protestant Clergy revolted against the Nazi anti-Semitic laws; the Catholics in Belgium fought anti-Semitism. Throughout Europe non-Jews battled in behalf of Jews against the Nazi-revolting measures of Jew-baiting.

It is our conviction that Jew and non-Jew can live in friendly relationship together. Everybody in Europe because of common suffering knows now that Jew hatred is only the beginning for world hatred. Will life in post-war Europe be unbearable for Jews? If this is so then it will be just as unbearable for Czechs and Poles, for Serbs and Belgians. Because all small peoples have suffered, because all religions have undergone persecution at the hands of the new barbarians, Europeans have come to know that hatred must be stopped or Europe will not survive.

This is a new experience, a new lesson. When Moses ended Isaiah, Jesus and the saints of the church have been unable to reach Gentile Europe, the Nazis have taught them well. Gentile Europe has learned through pain that the hope for mankind is to plan for a co-operative world. Jewish and Christian suffering in these tragic years has yielded the fruits of a great comradeship.

Above all must decent men and women of every creed and race now dedicate themselves and now labor for mankind's liberation from the Hitler curse. A mighty process of re-education must now take place throughout the globe. If Hitlers legions failed to invade the Americas the Hitler demonic ideology nevertheless has overtaken the minds of thousands of innocent people on the American Continent. These words in the language of the Nazi ideology that seek to divide peoples, that tend to negate democracy and destroy brotherhood and fellowship. Alas, in Canada and the United States there are groups of underlings who still would like to play the Hitler game.

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without fervor
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

In these black years of the German withdrawal from civilization each year has been worse than the terrible one just before it but the Jews have said Happy New Year to each other in the spirit of hopefulness that characterizes them as a people accustomed to the long view of history. True their course as the spiritual stream of humanity was interrupted but not stopped for all time only delayed. Meantime as they adjured the peoples of the earth at the New Year to join in one hand to do God's holy will it was their function to keep hope alive.

Jewish numbers were being diminished in ways which made this look like the end of the world but their optimism has not died. Ominous clouds gathered over them but their speakers warned the devils of wanton ferocity that their satanic efforts were foredoomed to failure. The Jews waited in vain for the collective conscience of humanity to raise a cry in time against the holocaust that displaced the foundations of decency and threw about like rags and weeds the basic human values but they looked forward nevertheless with decent confidence. Their enemy polluted against them...the sea that laps all shores with the lingering corroding poison of hatred and contempt and gave unrestrained play to his natural scrawniness but the Jews possessing ancient prophets who saw eternally modern visions did not sink down in despair because they knew that evil is destroyed in the end by its own nature.

This is the period that Jeremiah foretold: "Behold evil shall go forth from nation to nation and a great whirlwind shall be raised up from the coasts of the earth. And the slain of the Lord shall be at that day from one end of the earth even unto the other end of the earth: they shall not be lamented neither gathered nor buried: they shall be dung upon the ground." This is also the period when the innocent have been burned alive in special furnaces so that they could be destroyed and still used as fertilizer and their clothes and shoes could be kept for others. But though the nightmarish descent of man to this awful point in degradation began with the Jews as victims, they know in their hearts that no horror can block the way for long to the further enrichment of mankind in an increasingly better world.

Even now when human life has been rendered cheaper than mud and human dignity has been lowered to a fantastic degree the Jews are unshaken in their faith that the world moves forward, not because the destroying hordes are being stayed in their fiendish movements but because there is a glimmer of hope which has nothing to do with governments or military might. For something is happening in the corrupt and battered countries of Europe between man and man men regardless of their class race nationality language or creed, between Jews and their neighbors which is raising the stature of mankind.

Millions have been murdered by systematic butchery but men are going to rise from the dead, as it were, and meet men who are rising from the dead. They are going to emerge from the deep forests, crawl out of the caves, and shed their disguises. They are going to change back their names to which they used to be. They will say farewell to the places of hiding in the homes, the cellars, and the fields of good neighbors and take back the children from the kindly Gentiles who reared them using their own.

Millions have been butchered but some remain even in the worst slaughter areas because of the hand, the pity, the help and the fury of countrymen who fed them, hid them and shielded them at the greatest risk to themselves. While great governments appeased the enemy and hesitated to affront him, while leaders in every country waited, hung back and kept a silence which was perfidious to fellowmen and a commentary on Christianity, not just weeping, the ordinary man in the field and the workshop became a guardian of the Jews in the terrific struggle to keep alive the flotsam and jetsam of the ghettoes, the butt of the demagogues, the scapegoat of the darkest forces of the world.

While in the neutral countries, the so-called democracies, men of shabby seeming two-dollar swords, sought to satisfy themselves that the influx of refugees was no more than a token rescue, barriers between the Jews and their neighbors, the common people, have been falling away in the war zone, the stronger the fight against the enemy and his brood. The scourge which has swept over the Jews has now swept many lands together in a common defense against a common threat, and in the presence of such a catastrophe anti-Semitism, the manufactured divider, has had to give way.

"The Germans have left me nothing," sighed the old baron, shaking hands with any man or woman wearing the yellow Star of David, "not even my anti-Semitism."

The brother hand provides the ray of hope that counts. It counts because it is the life hand that will save the human family. The Jews have reason this New Year to feel a renewed faith in it as an augury of a future in which fellowship and democracy will transcend all divisions.

A New Year's Message To Canadian Jewry

By Samuel Bronfman, of Montreal, President Of the Canadian Jewish Congress

It is with increasing optimism and with a knowledge that that struggle to which it dedicated itself five years ago is now nearing its triumphant conclusion, that Canadian Jewry today greets the

New Year. The tide of battle has definitely turned in favour of the forces of civilization; occupied country after occupied country is being liberated from the Nazi tyranny by the valiant armies of the United Nations; everywhere the foe is staggering beneath the blows of our advancing legions; everywhere that New Order which Fascism so arrogantly thought to establish is falling apart like a house of cards. The conviction which was ours, even in the darkest days of our need, that right must inevitably conquer over might, is being daily vindicated. One by one the lights of Europe go on again.

It is a scene which fills us with both gratitude and pride, gratitude that the sacrifices which we have made and are making during the years of this ordeal are not in vain, and pride in the contribution of our Empire, of our country and of our people to this, the noblest enterprise in history.

Canadian Jewry, however, is aware that even as it stands heartened and elated by the victories which have been vouchsafed our armies, the complete triumph has not yet been achieved. The enemies of mankind still hold millions enslaved; large territories still groan beneath their tyranny. No one yet knows to what steps of desperation the cornered foe may be impelled. Doubtless, great effort still will have to be made, great sacrifices still endured before the world can feel that that nightmare which swept over it has been banished forever.

Indeed, after Providence to which we presently direct our prayers, has granted us the victory so earnestly desired, there is no doubt but that the problems of peace will also be such as to tax our greatest courage, our keenest vision, our best good will. The tragedy which will be revealed beneath the ruins of an emancipated Europe defies conjecture. Countries decimated, families torn apart, survivors starving, populations broken in body and spirit, these will constitute challenges to our constructive powers, even as the still undefeated might of Nazidom constitutes a challenge to our destructive capacities. The particularly tragic plight of our brethren overseas, the remnant of Israel now reaching the termination of its martyrdom, must in the days that follow call forth from us an effort on reconstruction as yet inconceivable.

In the meantime, Canadian Jewry faces the New Year with the knowledge that although much has been achieved, much still remains to be done. It proceeds therefore, unflinchingly along the course to which it has pledged itself, thankful that its cause has been brought thus far along the path to victory and determined not to cease from effort or sacrifice until the final triumph is won. That triumph, it knows, will itself be the beginning of new problems, problems of reconstruction, of resettlement, of permanent peace, problems which will require the greatest courage and the best vision of our people.

Already, I note, intergovernmental commissions and conferences, giving thought to the morrow, are busily engaged in drawing up the blueprint for the better world to emerge after the war. We do hope that in these plans for the future, aimed at restoring nations to their territories, responsible authority will rectify the age-old wrong done to our people, and at last accord to dispossessed Jewry its just rights in a Jewish Homeland in Palestine.

Solemnly at this sacred season, Canadian Jewry again dedicates itself to both the cause of freedom which has so vitally engaged it during the past, and to the tasks of humanity which now loom on the horizon. In this spirit, it fervently hopes, and devotedly strives that the year 5705 be a turning point in our history, banishing the trials and tribulations which have hitherto been our lot, and ushering in a new era of peace and brotherhood for all mankind.

war days are fertile times for reaction, for attacks upon minorities. Let us now gird our loins to cleanse humanity's household from that deviltry and that poison, Fascism and Hitlerism in all its forms.

We must pray most fervently this Rosh Hashonah for the strength which religion can give us, for the vision which religion can fortify us with to build the decent society as mankind is about to take to the new road to peace. It will be a slow road to peace.

Farewell, tragic year 5704. Only on the calendar have you come to an end. We can not forget the burden of tragedy you brought to Israel. We weep for Israel's martyred. We welcome you 5705, the most hopeful year in a decade, the year of victory, of liberation, the New Year which challenges mankind with the opportunity to build a lasting peace, a just world order.

Leshono Tova, may the New Year be a year of happy reunion and bring back to home altars the dear ones from battle-fronts. May it prove to be a year where nations will dedicate all powers, moral, economic and military to enforce peace and thus help speed the establishment of God's Kingdom on Earth.

"Hidden from our gaze are the events of the future. But we trust in Thee and fear not. Open unto us in mercy the portals of the New Year, and grant us life and health, contentment and peace.

The Combined Y.M.H.A. And Y.W.H.A. As The Jewish Community Centre Of Montreal

By Lavy M. Becker, Executive Director, Montreal Y.M.H.A.

Though this year marks the thirty-fifth anniversary of the Montreal Y.M.H.A., a span of more than a full generation, and a few generations of youth, the Y., still true to its youthful spirit, is at the threshold of a new era.

The successful building fund campaign of last year, which will make possible the redesigning and extension of the present building as well as the erection of a new building in another part of the city; (2) the joining of the Y.M.H.A. and Y.W.H.A. into one organization; and (3) our entry into a new period of history, the post-war world, provide the framework of this new era. To see clearly the picture thus to be framed we must study the broad outline of the past which has made the anticipated picture possible.

The Y.M.H.A. was created out of the yearnings of a few young men who felt the need for an organized athletic and cultural program. The early struggles to make this possible kept their interest focused on their own needs. Home after home was changed in favor of a larger and better one to house the facilities of a Y, whose membership fluctuated. Ten years of such struggle culminated in the acquisition of a real building located on "upper" St. Urbain Street.

Now a new spirit developed. The Y. was important not only to satisfy the needs and interests of the young men who sought it out. It was now important as a community institution. The Jewish community needed such an institution to stimulate its young people as Jews and as Canadians. Its competitive teams brought to the attention of other Canadians, to our Christian neighbors, that our boys, their Jewish neighbors, were not only good athletes, but good sports whether as winners or losers. It helped us earn their respect. It gave our boys the opportunities for fun, for healthful competition, for physical development and for strengthening of character.

It did not take long, however, for the Y. leaders to recognize that the real raison d'etre of the Y. went far beyond this. For others of all ages began to look to the Y. for their interests too, for chess, for debate, for discussion, for music, for drama, for friendship. The horizon widened, the philosophy was beginning to be articulated.

The period of greatest anticipation came with the new building, opened in 1929. What a glorious future was foreseen! Yet how little they knew that the Y.'s glory was really to be great, but in a different direction. For the 1930s brought severe economic depression during which denial of opportunity was the sad keynote. Here the Y., alert to changing needs, strengthened in its newly forming philosophy of community service, its staff numerically inadequate, but magnificent in its devotion and capacity for growth, met the challenge. New activities were created, jobs were found, hours extended, all as part of the program to help make life palatable for an ever growing membership.

At no time in its history, however, has the Y. given greater service than during the last five years, war years. Twelve hundred of its members are in the armed forces. The Y. serves them, keeps them informed, and is preparing to receive them back warmly on their return to civilian life. Thousands of other men and women in uniform, non-members, were welcomed into the building, into regular and special programs, while the Y. Minstrel Show has travelled far and wide to entertain tens of thousands of troops. During this time the civilian membership has increased to five thousand, three hundred, an undreamed of number. The strain on the physical and human resources of the Y. was tremendous, but its service went on unabated.

The war period has had its effects on the population. Practically every family has an immediate or related member in the armed forces. Deep concern for his or her welfare has heightened emotions. We live under greater tensions. Anti-Semitism and racial antipathies have increased. Children are receiving much less, rather than the greater parental

Jewish Community Life In Latin America

A Growing, Dynamic Force Emerges To Meet Post-War Problems

By Louis Sobel, Joint Distribution Committee, New York

In recent years North Americans have become increasingly aware of their neighbors south of the Rio Grande and of the problems facing them as well as all American countries—problems that are of a political, economic, social and cultural nature. Our government's "Good-Neighbor Policy" has been responsible for a great deal of this awakened interest. The Latin American governments and peoples, too, realizing the great stakes that are involved, have begun to recognize the interdependence of all the countries in the Western Hemisphere.

Such recognition on their part is evident despite some of their reservations, suspicions and, in a few instances, even hostilities. This increased mutual interest has been expressed through a program of closer contact, communication and exchange in many spheres of activity. Although primarily focused, at this time, on the need for Hemisphere defense against the further inroads of fascism in the Americas, the cultivated interest will become, in the postwar period, a basis for extensive cooperation in meeting the peace needs of all the countries concerned.

For American Jews the link between the U. S. A. and the countries to the South has assumed special significance since the rise of Hitler. Within the last ten years Latin America has provided a haven for some 114,000 Jewish refugees from Nazism. And within the last six years, American Jewry has contributed, via the J. D. C., some $2,900,000 toward the adjustment of these refugees. The J. D. C. accepted this responsibility knowing that the new arrivals needed help in establishing themselves in their new countries, and that the local Jewish communities did not have the financial and organizational resources to provide even for their basic needs.

Upon joining the 463,000 older Jewish settlers in the Latin American countries the refugees have given impetus to new community developments, which are of great value to both North and Latin American Jewish life. A description of the Jewish communities in those countries and of the newcomers there, will reveal the significance of these developments.

Few of the states in Latin America provide census data for an accurate count of their Jewish populations. A conservative estimate places the number of Jews in all the Latin American countries at 577,000. The Jews arrived in these countries in three main waves of immigration: (1) The Sephardim from the Mediterranean regions—Turkey, North Africa, Egypt, Palestine—arrived some 50 to 60 years ago. At that time, also, under the direction of the Jewish Colonization Association, several thousand East-European Jews settled in Argentina and Brazil. (2) The bulk of East-Europeans arrived after World War I, from 1919 to 1932. (3) The Central-European Jews fled there from the Hitler terror during the past decade.

These three groups are now distributed somewhat as follows:

Sephardim	75,000 to 100,000
East-Europeans	300,000 to 350,000
Central-Europeans	125,000 to 150,000

In general the Jews have made remarkable progress in becoming an integral and contributing part of the economic life in their new lands—to the unmistakable advantage of the countries which offered them hospitality, as well as of themselves. These countries, having just recently begun their modern industrial and commercial expansion, have received the benefit of their new skills and enterprises in commerce, science, industry, the professions and the arts, which the immigrants have brought to them. In turn, the latter have been given the opportunity to start life anew. They have introduced local industries such as the manufacture of furniture, textiles, clothing, leather goods; they have expanded import and export, and projected merchandising methods that increased trade and consumption among the entire population.

In this new era of Latin American industrial and commercial expansion, the refugees from Hitler's persecution have made a surprisingly satisfactory adjustment, even as well as have the old established settlers. Of the 114,000 refugees who have arrived since 1933 (the great majority of them with little or no resources) there are today only some 3,000 requiring assistance from local welfare committees subsidized by the J. D. C. About 1,000 of these are in Bolivia.

The refugee in South America is a merchant in Buenos Aires, a small factory owner in Bogota, Colombia, a farmer in Nor Yungas, Bolivia, a physician in Rio de Janeiro. He has introduced new businesses and new business methods into South America. He has started factories and turned out products that previously had to be imported. In Santiago, Chile, there are some 800 refugee enterprises, many of them new to the country, which provide a livelihood for some 4,000 people, or one-third of the refugee population in that country, and for a large number of native Chileans. Local stores now sell Chile-made mattresses, glassware, electrical appliances, ladies' clothing—all former imports.

The Jews of La Paz, Bolivia, recently held an exposition of the products they manufacture. Attended by the president of Bolivia and other high officials, the exposition received wide acclaim in the press and did much to draw attention to the contribution that the refugees had made to the wealth of Bolivia. Among the items on display was a refugee-manufactured microscope, the first of its kind to be made in that country.

Across the mountains in Bogota, Colombia, there is further evidence of refugee initiative. New factories turn out cosmetics, dyes, lamp shades and wearing apparel, much of which had to be imported heretofore. In the mountain-locked city of Cali there are new plants that manufacture cutlery, combs, chromium plating. In Medellin, a handful of refugees are busy manufacturing belts, gloves, boxes and knitted goods. Employees in these plants are largely native workers.

One of the most interesting manifestations of refugee courage and initiative is the agricultural training colony "Buena-Tierra" in the Bolivian Andes. Launched four years ago by the American Jewish Joint Agricultural Corporation (Agro-Joint), a J. D. C. affiliate, and the Refugee Economic Corporation, it is now manned by 150 refugees. Out of the wild, overgrown country, previously inhabited only by Indians, these modern pioneers have cleared and made cultivable many acres of land on which they grow bananas, pineapples and coffee. They live in neat, weather-proof houses and have installed even a modern swimming pool. Their lives are hard, but they are determined to prove their skills as tillers of the soil and they take great pride in their colony. Such evidence of pioneering can be multiplied manifold.

GAS

PLAYS A VITAL WARTIME ROLE

To-day on land, on the sea and in the air, our fighting forces are in constant communication with each other and with head quarters—thanks to the superbly efficient radio equipment developed during the war. Rogers Electronic Tubes Limited are working full time producing the tubes for such radio equipment.

Making the modern vacuum tube calls not only for scientific knowledge but also a high degree of skill and technical "know-how" on the part of craftsmen, expert in metal and glass.

It is therefore highly significant that in moulding the glass tubes, Gas is used exclusively. At Rogers Electronic Tubes, Limited, as in so many other plants devoted to producing the materials of war, Gas has proved the best fuel for highly technical production. And, when the Victory is won, Gas will continue to play an equally important role in helping to produce peacetime goods.

The Three Weapons Of Victory

By Rabbi Abraham L. Feinberg, Holy Blossom Congregation, Toronto

5705 may be the most fateful year in Israel's history since the destruction of the Jewish State. Indeed, what hour has been more heavily freighted with universal portent? As in other great events, we Jews have been chosen by history for the central role. A minority negligible in numbers, Israel is scattered to the four corners of the earth; yet, as an ancient sage reminds us, we live in the center. About us the battle rages, the tumult swells to a deafening roar, banners rise and fall.

In casualties, size of stakes, courage and spiritual significance, Israel marches in the vanguard of the Allied Nations. The young Jewish general who, at the head of a Soviet Army, was the first to administer the physical punishment of invasion to German soil, is symbol of the rank which history has conferred upon us.

What can be more natural than our centrality in this frightful Armageddon? Did it not begin with us? More than a decade has passed since Hitlerism began systematically to degrade and destroy Israel. Then the world did not realize the meaning of the Nazi onslaught. Our brethren in other faiths regarded it as a latter phase of the perennial Jewish problem—and passed on the other side.

For centuries, Christian teaching has idealized the Good Samaritan, who, in the New Testament parable, intervened on behalf of his wronged fellowman. Yet, when the tiny Jewish group in Germany was singled out for sadistic savagery, the Christian Church adopted the tactic of the execrated Levite, and refused to meddle. German Jewry was an exposed signal-station; it flashed a desperate warning to all religion. But to Christian leadership, it twinkled merely as a plea for political intercession—and they were busy elsewhere.

Had official Christianity really followed the Samaritan's example and regarded the Jewish plight as its own, the Nazi gangsters could never have plunged Germany into military adventure and the world into war.

But that epoch of isolation is terminated. The true meaning and menace of Nazism have been revealed as an attack upon the spiritual foundations of civilized life. Its anti-Semitism now stands exposed, no longer an end in itself, but an instrument for world-confusion and conquest. Only a short time ago, it seems, we were still denouncing the tragic weaknesses of democracy—isolation and appeasement. Since then, the world has been thrilled by the fortitude of free people dedicated to preserving their freedom. What heroic sagas have been written on the white cliffs of Dover, the crags of Greece, the river valleys of Yugoslavia, the beaches of Normandy and the vast battle-line of Russia!

Yet, our salvation must arise, in the end, from ourselves. If we relinquish that essential fact, we ignore the lesson of this decade. Other people have compromised and will compromise. Nazi-Fascism appeals strongly to certain easily-exploited and unregenerate instincts. National interests, especially when warped by demagoguery and ignorant prejudices, will not exert or sacrifice itself to safeguard Israel. The reality needs to be confronted: we are a captive people, a pawn or at best a prise of world conflict.

We can, nay we must, contribute everything at our command to secure the victory of that protagonist who will treat us, and mankind, with some measure of decency. The alternative is total extermination. Our ultimate redemption, however, must be forged out of ourselves. Like the chained Messiah in David Frischman's poem, the world cannot free us until we are a generation that is ready for freedom.

Our rabbis asked, "Why is Abraham called 'Ivri', 'Hebrew?'" And the answer comes forth: "Because all the universe stands on one side ('ever' — from which 'Ivri' 'Hebrew' is derived) and Abraham stands on the other." All the world on one side, and Abraham, Israel, on the other! From the dawn of our career in the mind of Abraham, we have been set in moral opposition to an evil-beclouded world.

Ours is a mission of protest. Tension and struggle, the burden and the blessing of uniqueness, are the destined norm of our existence. If we are a prophetic people, it is because, like the prophets, we are undeviatingly and everlastingly against that which is, and determined to shape that which must be. We are man's conscience, the ferment, the reminder of his possibilities—and his failures. Does the world hate us for it? Perhaps. That is our function, whether it be expressed in what we teach or what we suffer.

The present world needs only a glance at its massacred Jews to realize the extent of its sinfulness. And the fulfilment of that function will alone guarantee our security. Nothing can release Israel from recurring, and even intensified, persecution after the delirium and traumatic fever of a new World War, except an awakening of the universal conscience to the concepts of justice and fellowship and human worth which are the Jewish heritage. The only genuine and lasting victory for Israel will be a by-product of victory for the ideals Israel stands for.

What evolves, with terrible logic, from this blunt, hard fact?. . . Our most effective contribution to the fight on Hitler, the surest technique of self-defense, must be forged out of our will to be what we can be. The destiny of our children will not be fashioned by mechanisms for anti-defamation (though they are accomplishing an increasingly vital task), but by our loyalty to the best we have and are. From a long-term view, the survival of Jews will depend on the survival of Judaism in their hearts. Judaism shall not be a war casualty, but a permanent investment in the future of mankind! Unless we, today, husband the creed and practise whence alone the world can draw its light, we ourselves stumble into the abyss, and the world plunges with us for lack of truth.

During the past year the Nazi abattoir has been enlarged by ever-fresh increments of ruthlessness. Hundreds of thousands of Jews have been added to the vast ghetto-graveyard into which Hitler's architects of death herd their victims. It were futile, and heart-shattering, to recount the immeasurable suffering the stream-lined insanity of organized Nazi butchers has heaped upon us in 5704. Yet the soul is crucial. The conquered nations of the European continent lie prostrate because their soul surrendered. Before the military fortress crumbled, the spirit had been undermined by defeatism.

Why has British valor electrified the world? Because something in the soul of that beleaguered island rushed forth and clenched a fist of indomitable will. Norway has proved that even in physical defeat, the soul can be unbeatable. And Russia has written in blood, for all the future to read, an undying epic of the spirit's resistance.

For thirty centuries Israel has lived by and through the spirit. Whereas, Italy and Germany tested their bombing-planes in the Spanish Civil War, Israel has tested and hardened its spiritual armament in a thousand conflicts. The moral rearmament about which men speak glowingly today, was our emergency defense from Babylon to Berlin. In the arsenal of our traditions are many mighty weapons, forged on the anvil of long and grim experience. In this article, I shall name three.

Appropriately enough in a day of military conflict, they are the virtues, and psychic basis, of physical warfare as well. What does an army in the field exalt as the basis of high morale? Three attitudes:—unity, discipline, and faith. Unity, discipline, faith.

First, unity. A line is being furrowed in blood across the earth's surface. On one side paganism, mustering its black ranks of hatred, shouts that mankind has been pulverized into superior and slave groups. Only one group has been designed to rule; the remainder, to work and pray. On the other side the voice of religion still dares to lift itself out of the ruck. It murmurs brotherhood.

Nazism not only believes in hatred, but employs it as an instrument of war, to divide and weaken. The enemies of Nazism were joined together at first by a common, successive martyrdom to that hatred. Now a new spiritual fraternity is being hammered out—drawing closer, growing stronger, fighting harder. In that fraternity Israel takes its rightful place.

But is that enough? We cannot aid the forces of brotherhood in Europe until we lead them to victory among ourselves. The powers of ill-will which already half-strangle the earth have not spared our own domain. If, as the Talmud says, we should oppose the sin rather than the sinner, the eradication of mutual prejudice is one of our first objectives.

For one thing, the time has come to forget where we or our parents were born. Of all the snobberies in Jewish life, those based on ethnic origin are the most pitiful. . . . A persecuted, harassed, helpless people fragmentizes even its small store of strength by inflating with artificial, compensatory arrogance the value of those nationalistic chauvinisms which spewed them forth. Thus we fondle the hand Loading coal cars at a Dominion Coal Company Bar's head in Nova Scotia.

For well over a century the Nova Scotia coal fields have poured millions of tons of energy-producing fuel supplying power for railways steamships and manufacturing plants in the Maritimes Quebec and Ontario.

The output of Dominion Coal Company Limited under normal conditions is approximately 22,000 tons of bituminous coal per day.

At the present time the Company is employing approximately 29,000 persons annually distributing $36,000,000. Of this $17,000,000 go into the pay envelopes of the Company's employees enabling them to buy the products of their fellow countrymen across the Dominion.

That the production of this coal is largely stimulated by the demands of Canada's war effort. But when that effort has been crowned with success and victory has been won what then?

How then will a peacetime demand be created to absorb this daily volume of coal and keep these people employed? This problem is part of the larger problem of maintaining work and wages for all Canadians in the post-war years.

Canadians can solve this problem if they pull together in the peace as they are now pulling together to win the war.

which smote us—and demean ourselves and one another!

The rabbis left us a beautiful legend about the young lad, Jacob. He had just fled his father's house to escape the wrath of Esau. The darkness of night found him alone in the desert. He looked about him for a rock on which to rest his head. To his surprise there were twelve rocks where he stood—and each bore the name of one of the tribes of Israel—and they got to quarreling among themselves. "Jacob shall rest his head on me! Jacob shall rest his head on me!", they cried. But Jacob did not select one stone. He took all twelve and piled them upon each other and made of them a couch. And that night he dreamed of the ladder between heaven and earth. . . The vision of One God flowered the conception of one people.

No less than our beloved country requires national unity in time of danger, does our faith demand spiritual unity. The Union of American Hebrew Congregations, more than any other Jewish religious body, can supply the amalgam. Within each of our constituents, a process of levelling has been in progress for a generation. The original homogeneity of the Reform Temple has given place to a thorough admixture, with gradual ritualistic concessions to the new vigorous elements. The stubborn resistance of doctrinaire or "old family" interests has yielded to the obvious benefits of expanding membership and to democratic techniques. . . Reform Congregations, therefore, have been prepared by the exigencies of practical political politics and by prophetic teaching, for the current call to unification. The Temple not only has an opportunity, but an obligation, to become "A House of the People", where the Jewish masses can find voice, spokesman, assembly-hall and dynamic faith.

Despite the over-publicized tea-pot-tempest in Houston, Texas, derived in part from an adolescent, and shrewdly-promoted, Messiah-complex in its local leadership, the sweep of imminent events will remove the controversial phase of Zionism from the calendar of Jewish destiny. A solution favorable to Zionist aspirations cannot be long delayed. The arbitrament of Zion will soon, please God, rest with the determined will-to-justice of the common man who now risks and rests his life upon the issue of global war.

World events have converted the struggling colonies of Palestine into one of the most formidable links in the besieged bulwarks of democracy and Israel. Thank God that the Zionist cause was so consecrated and stubborn! When the lights of Jewish culture are guttering to extinction in the Nazi whirlwind, a bright, richly-fueled flame has begun to radiate from the Yishub. When the communities of Europe are sinking out of sight in mud and blood and slave-oblivion, a half million Jewish souls open unafraid in an atmosphere of courage, vigor, and naturalness.

Not even the most earnest anti-Zionist can fail to glimpse the potentialities of the Palestinian settlement in the terrible problems of reconstruction and salvage which will follow the war. The value of Zion will depend, in some measure at least, on the solidarity with which American and Canadian Israel demands recognition of Jewry's right to aid in Zion, and reward for its service to freedom. Reform Jewish leadership is privileged now to bury Zionism as a reason for conflict, in order to keep Zion alive as a reason for hope.

Unity with Jews in the present must be allied to unity with Judaism in the past. What, after all, makes us conscious Jews? Contact with cultural and religious traditions, which have been passed on to us through a union of minds! The will to learn our history and continue it, to absorb the intellectual treasures of our forefathers and preserve them, to know the spirit of our teachers and send it on into the future!

We are the servants of one consuming aim:—the equipment of our children for the world in which they will dwell. That world, even under the most roseate conditions we can predict, will be more difficult by far than the milieu which nourished us. Unquestionably, we are called upon to prepare our children for hard and critical days.

One inescapable requirement is to make every valid sacrifice in order that Hitler's grandiose strategy of world-rule might be confounded. Another need is to buttress our position as Canadians, and to mortise Canadian ideals deep in the nation's soul. We must ponder, nevertheless, a challenge even more pivotal—the rootage of our children in pride, in a long-term comprehension of the purpose in Jewish experience.

If they must endure, let them know why! If they must wear the badge of suffering, let them associate it with a spiritual aristocracy! If they must tread the path of their forebears, let them know that it was trodden with dignity and valor! If they must profess Judaism, let them lift it up on high as the promise and symbol of human redemption! . . . Unless we gird our youth with invincible regard for the keystone role of Judaism, we send them into the fray without ammunition.

Israel is a white prism, drawing into itself all the light of universal human experience, breaking it into shafts of truth, and summoning unregenerate men to serve and honestly. Beneath this lofty self-consciousness to Jewish youth, not only through instruction but example! We have little positive respect for our own inestimable position on the battle-front of mankind.

Why do I say this? Because we often despise ourselves and our co-religionists, scorning every manifestation of pristine Judaism as the source of our misery. Because we often ignore Jewish loyality until the anti-Semite scratches our skin. Because we have cut communication with our spiritual arsenals, to the rear of the line, and are now floundering, helpless and disarmed. Because we refuse the arms which Judaism offers, and leave the field to our enemies, viz., self-distrust and self-disdain. The area of Israel's spiritual conflict looms clear.

Here, on one side, is compromise, cringing, contempt for our own heritage. There, on the other, is pride in the past, fortitude in the present, and grim confidence in the future. For our children's sake, let us reestablish an unbreakable line back to the bulging store-houses of our morale. Put an end to isolation from the past, and put an end to spiritual pacifism.

The second weapon is discipline.

Twenty-five centuries ago, Jeremiah sat on a crag outside the gates of Jerusalem and saw his people carried off to Babylonian captivity. As he sat, he looked beyond the shackled refugees, the desolate villages, the fire-ravaged Temple to the root truth of all time, our day as well as his. And he cried out, "Circumcise your hearts!"

Upon whom did he urge this change in conduct? Upon Israel! Weighted down with sorrow, Israel yet had sinned! . . . The prophetic message was always coiled around this hard gem-like truth, that world-sin brings world-suffering. How salient this is today! Machinery has outstripped morals, cities of earth are being shattered because we have not built the City of God in our souls! Man himself has retreated into the primitive, and dark tides of barbarism surge up from the depths. The moral fibre of all peoples, Israel included, has been softened by indulgence, demoralized by sophistication and cynical debunking of ideals.

Jewish welfare can be underwritten only by a revitalization of man's moral nature. When anarchy reigns, Israel is lost. Therefore, the most profitable investment Jews can make is a contribution to the dwindling store of moral discipline—though the dividends may not be reaped for generations to come.

Within a particular group, too, discipline has definite survival-value. It was the self-discipline of the individual Jew that kept our people intact. From the time he arose until he lay to rest at night, from birth to death, throughout the centuries, he and his family comported themselves in strict obedience to a specific code. Under the impact of a pin-prick compared to our cumulative pain, other ancient and mediaeval peoples littered the ashheaps of history. We survived, because we were integrated for battle, by a moral law which had all the rigor and health of martial law.

In our time, and by our volition, many of those toughening disciplines have been abolished. The stream of progress left behind, "anachronisms" of a bygone era. But with them we have, to a dangerous degree, cast off the self-discipline which they embodied. The invalid regulations of the past have not been replaced by regulations valid for the present. We are losing the habit of, and the capacity for, controlling ourselves in the light of fundamental religious principles. Consecration has yielded to convenience.

That indictment applies to all groups. When it concerns Israel, it is also a sentence of doom. Without a rigid manual of self-discipline, we shall never outride our trials. For us, spiritual deterioration is death! Our pampered children will become the pathetic victims of our own lackadaisical, gadget-adoring, comfort-seeking society. They will have been trained for ease—but life during the next decades may not be easy at all!

The Greeks advised, "Know thyself." The Stoics urged, "Be thyself." Judaism says, "Rule thyself." . . . "Who is a hero? He who masters himself."

This definition of heroism, as self-dictatorship, is our sword against the Nazi system. That system dubs him a hero who rules others. It has created a "new order" on the glad or enforced submission by millions to external tyranny. But a permanent organization of society, nor even the thousand-year regime of Hitler's boast, cannot be built on robotism. Hitler's "new order" is a fantasy!

According to a familiar Midrashic tale, God offered the Decalog to all the seventy nations of the world. One after the other rejected it. The children of Esau spurned it because they could not reconcile themselves to the commandment: "Thou shalt not kill." The descendants of Moab declined to give up adultery. The Ishmaelites would not renounce their habit of theft. As a last resort, God gave the Torah to Israel, which accepted it.

Or can we use the word "gave"? Israel had unconsciously given the Law to itself. The soil and soul of the people were prepared to

Welfare Funds Must Be Ready To Serve In Meeting Many Problems

By Florence Hofner, of Toronto, Executive Director, United Jewish Welfare Fund of Toronto; Secretary, Committee of Canadian Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds

Closely resembling the old woman who lived in a shoe, who had so many children she didn't know what to do, was the state of Jewish philanthropy in Toronto prior to 1937. The community, extending financial help and social service to increasing number of persons who needed one or the other, and sometimes both; trying to meet its share of the programs which were aiding Jews in other countries and providing Jewish educational programs for children, found itself in the position of having so many campaigns for funds that its position very closely resembled that of the old woman with the numerous progeny.

As a result, before the organization of the United Jewish Welfare Fund of Toronto in 1937 many of the community's institutions were suffering from malnutrition because the competition for food was so severe that someone always went hungry; others often spent the night out-of-doors because there was not enough room under one roof for all; and still others stretched their worn and remodelled garments with trembling hands, fearing the inevitable last rips.

The community workers who felt their community obligations keenly were beginning to wear the harried and frustrated look of childless parenthood. They often found themselves campaigning for two or three institutions at the same time. There were so many financial demands on them that many found it difficult to evaluate the need and the response which it merited.

Through the effort of a group of leaders who were deeply aware of the confused and chaotic situation in the community, the United Jewish Welfare Fund of Toronto was organized in fall of 1937 and held its first campaign in September of that year combining eleven separate appeals. Over a period of seven years, the Welfare Fund income has therefore more than tripled itself, as it has striven to keep pace with the growing needs of Jews overseas and of Jewish agencies both national and local. Not rigid nor static, but flexible and supple has been the Welfare Fund, meeting emergencies and weathering storms, and remaining as a bulwark of strength for those who have clung to it.

Since 1937, many other Welfare Funds (or Federations) have developed in Canada: in Windsor, Winnipeg, Hamilton, St. Catharines, Kitchener, Guelph, Vancouver, Welland, Niagara Falls, and Kingston, with others in formative stages. As these have developed, an awareness has grown of the problems intrinsic to the Canadian scene. In the Fall of 1945, the Committee of Canadian Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds was formed under the Chairmanship of Ben Sadowski in affiliation with the Council of Jewish Federation and Welfare Funds. The Committee is concerned only with matters relative to Canadian life and institutions; and membership is still maintained by the individual Welfare Fund in the Council, for its guidance and counsel on general planning, and budgeting matters.

The Committee of Canadian Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds is demonstrating to communities that they can help each other. When the annual campaign of Windsor reached new heights in organization and funds raised, the Executive Director, A. D. Chevrette of Windsor prepared a summary of the campaign, and it was circulated by the Committee to other Canadian communities so that they could reap from Windsor's experience. Through the Committee the National Office of the Council of Jewish Federation and Welfare Funds has the [illegible] appreciation of [illegible]

P/O Harry Glass, R.C.A.F., who won the Distinguished Flying Medal for gallantry, has been reported killed in action. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Glass, 285 Queen Street East, Toronto. His wife is Miss Harry Mackowitz, formerly Miss Ruth Glass, whose daughter is overseas. There is a younger brother, Sheldon at home. Mr. and Mrs. P/O Glass' Halifax [illegible] Germany over Nuremberg, was attacked and disabled. Finally its petrol supply exhausted and it was "ditched" close to the enemy coast. Six of the eleven aboard got into the wing, it broke up and sank the pilot with it. P/O Glass managed to reach a partly inflated dinghy and pulled the remaining five aboard. They drifted for ten hours in the sea, were rescued and taken ashore. P/O Glass played rugby for Jarvis Collegiate and basketball with the Y.M.C.A. Before joining the R.C.A.F. he attended an aircraft school. P/O Glass, promoted from the rank of sergeant, was twenty-two.

IN ANCIENT TIMES

Only the free man was permitted to wear shoes. Kings and High Priests of the Egyptians wore the sandal with turned-up point; the common people wore the flat sandal. Both were made of strips of papyrus woven together. The strap which bound the sandal to the foot passed between the first and second toes.

FACE THE FUTURE PHYSICALLY FIT

"A sound mind in a sound body" is the aim of the laws of Judaism. And Rosh Hashanah affords an excellent opportunity to make worthy resolutions for the New Year, to change this hope into a reality. Face the future with all the physical fitness you can attain. For this is paramount in troubled times like these.

Should you be troubled by constipation, therefore, due to lack of the proper amount of "bulk" in your diet, we suggest KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. It will help you get at the cause — and correct it. Eat ALL-BRAN every day, either as a cereal or in muffins, drink plenty of water, and keep regular . . . naturally Thousands agree ALL-BRAN is the "better way", because it does so much more than provide just temporary relief. Available at your grocer's in two convenient sizes.

THIS YEAR
— a truly NEW year

This coming year the war-weary world will be facing the future with new hope — new courage.

Let us be thankful for our own healthy safe way of life here in Canada, and let us begin now to make it even better!

Much remains to be done before every Canadian knows the benefits of a healthful balanced diet. Milk and other dairy products are the spearhead of the attack on malnutrition providing the minerals and vitamins which protect you and yours against infection which build strong bones and teeth and, above all give the energy and stamina we all need for making this year truly "New".

Living Protection

THE FUTURE

The Key to Success

● It has long been recognized that the secret of financial success is to save a portion of all you earn—systematically and wisely. Such a plan must be flexible enough to meet changing conditions—and at the same time earn a reasonable rate of interest.

These features are combined in the Living Protection plan offered by Investors Syndicate of Canada Limited. By taking advantage of it, thousands of Canadians are reaching their goal of financial security.

Any man earning even a modest income—and who has ten or fifteen years of earning power left—can make a financial success of his life. Let an Investors Syndicate of Canada Limited representative show you how small amounts of money put aside regularly, can grow to sizeable sums—how you can accumulate $2,500.00, $5,000.00, $10,000.00, $25,000.00 or more. Ask him today about the many investors who are benefitting by this time-tested plan.

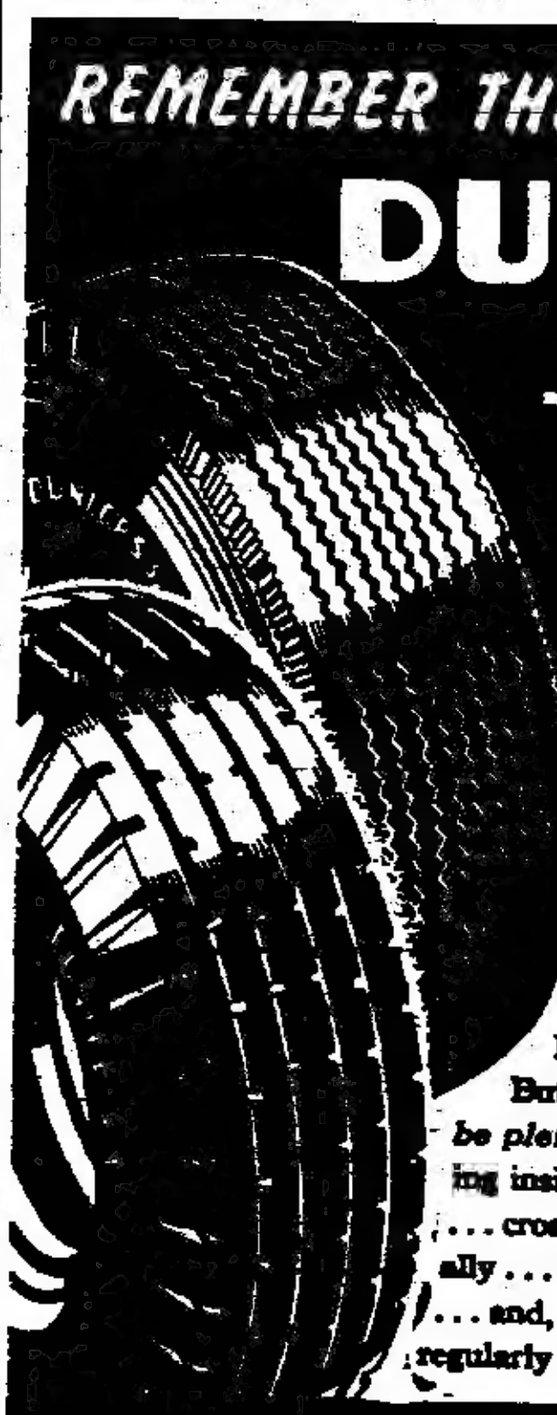
TIRES

WITH THEIR PRE-WAR TREAD DESIGNS. THEY ARE NOW OBTAINABLE IN SYNTHETIC RUBBER FOR ESSENTIAL WARTIME SERVICE



● All the best and newest developments in synthetic rubber are incorporated in Dunlop S 3 Cable Cord Tires. But remember, tires will not be plentiful in 1944. So keep driving inside the prescribed speed limit . . . cross-switch your tires occasionally . . . keep them properly inflated . . . and, above all, have your tires regularly checked by a Dunlop dealer.

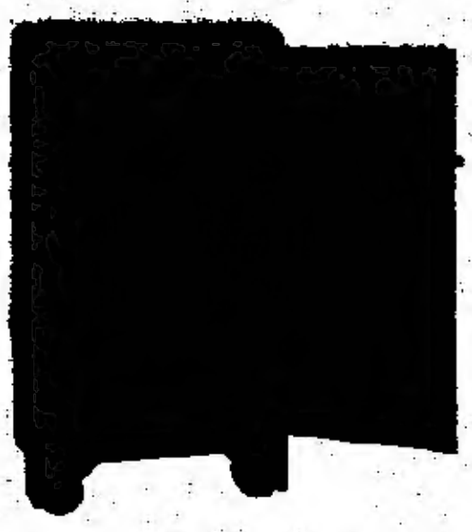
Insure Valuable Records Against Fire

Taylor Safes have survived unnumbered fires without loss. Many times they have been buried in fallen masonry and subjected to enormous weight as well as terrific heat. They have always come through with contents undamaged. Taylor Safes today include the improvements suggested by over three quarters of a century of experience.

Established 1855



Consult us for safes or steel cabinets, steel cupboards for furriers, or cash chests.

War Clouds Do Have A Silver Lining!

And it's well they do, for the price paid for war is a costly one. But out of its horrors emerge many medical discoveries that are instrumental ultimately in saving many more lives than are lost in war itself. An evidence, don't you think, that there is a Divine Providence who sees to it that out of the evils men bring upon themselves comes a greater good for all.

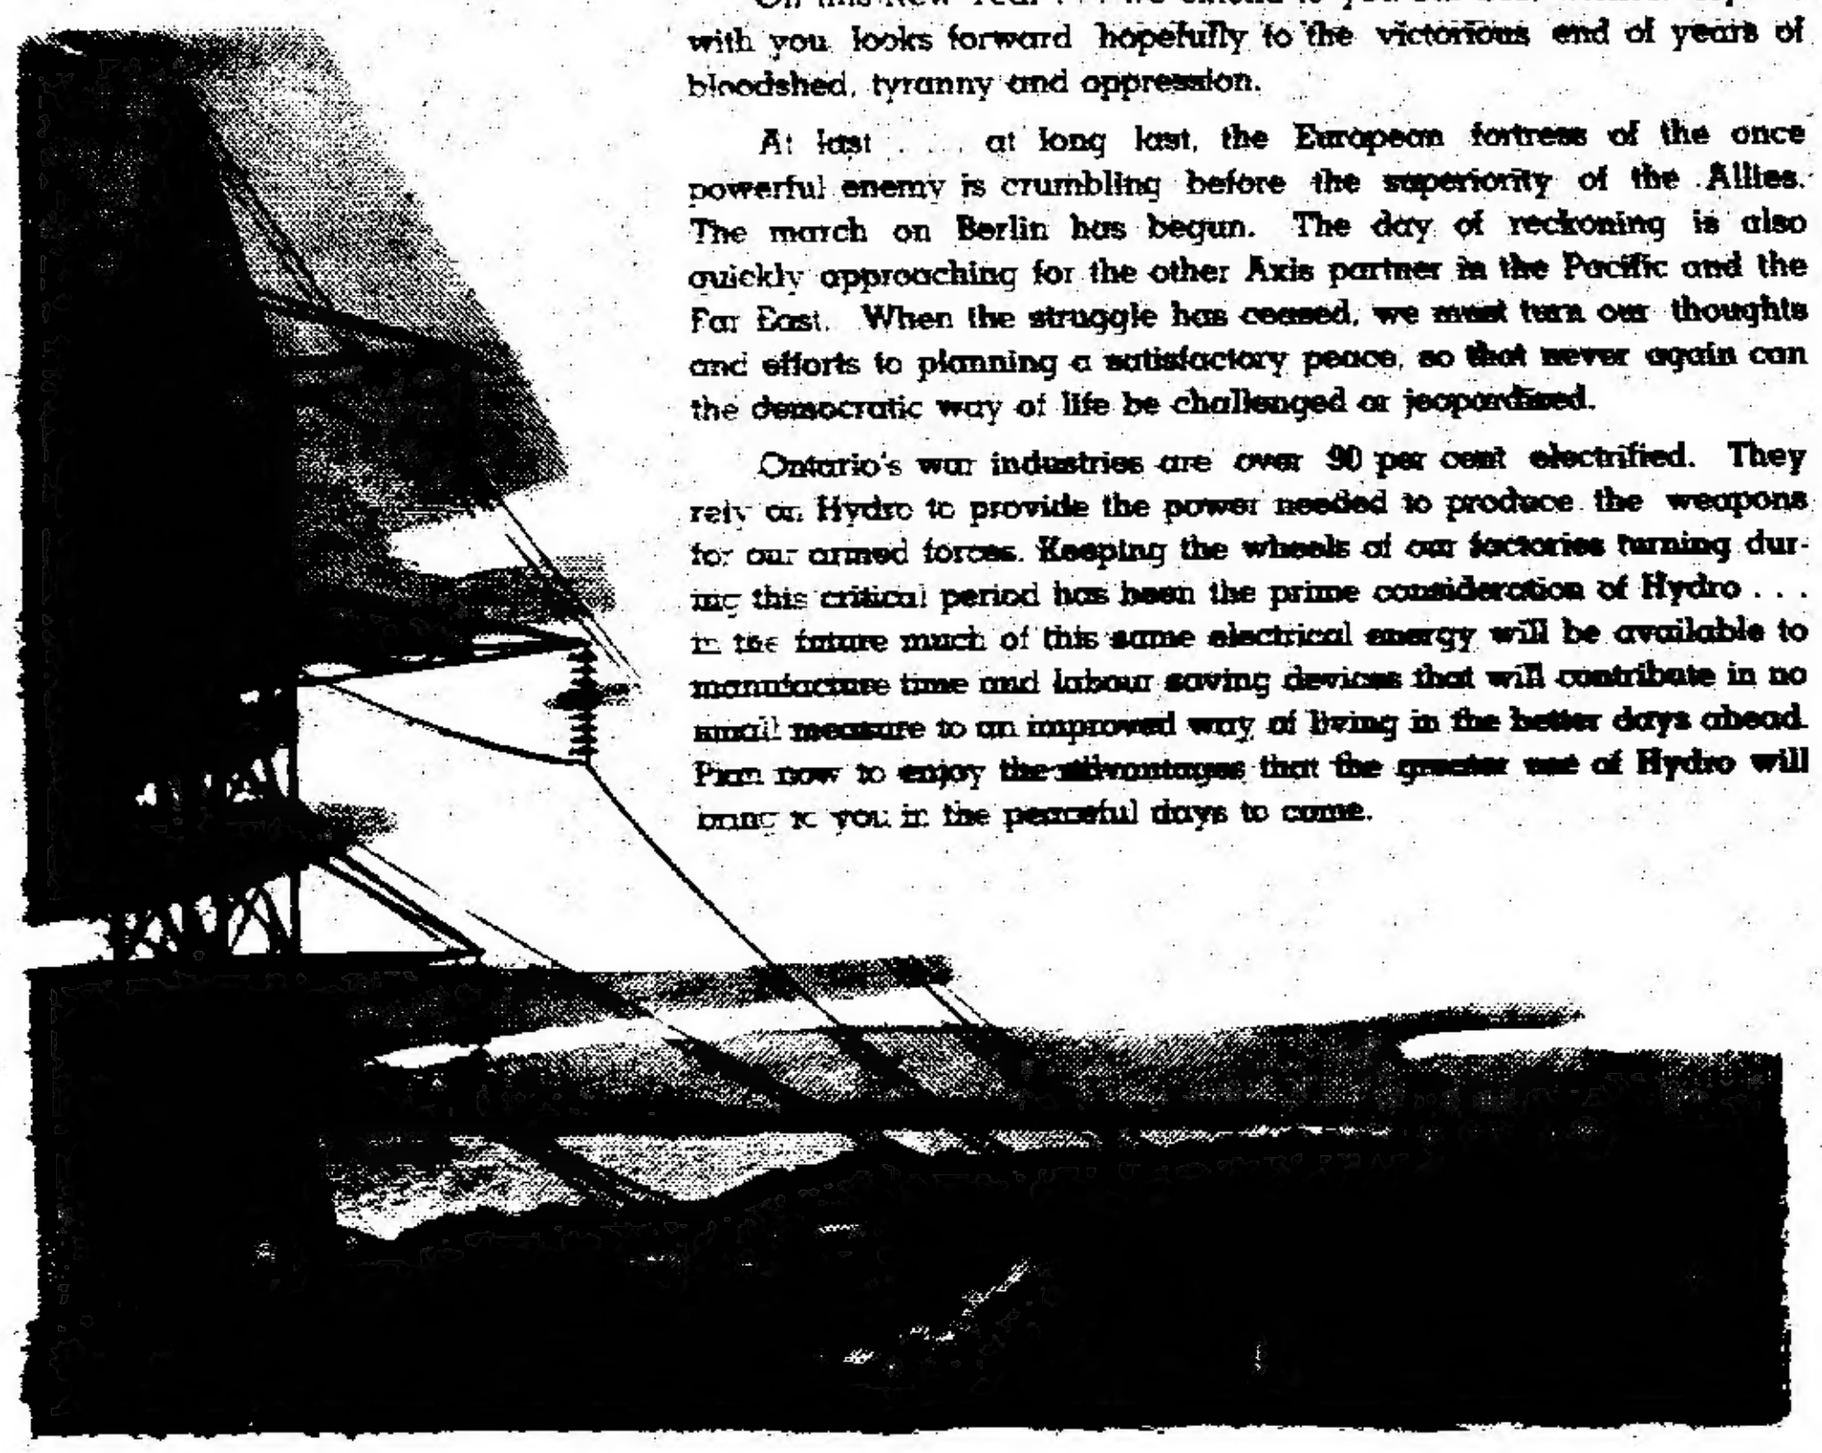
NEW YEAR GREETINGS FROM HYDRO



On this New Year . . . we extend to you our best wishes. Hydro, with you, looks forward hopefully to the victorious end of years of bloodshed, tyranny and oppression.

At last . . . at long last, the European fortress of the once powerful enemy is crumbling before the superiority of the Allies. The march on Berlin has begun. The day of reckoning is also quickly approaching for the other Axis partner in the Pacific and the Far East. When the struggle has ceased, we must turn our thoughts and efforts to planning a satisfactory peace, so that never again can the democratic way of life be challenged or jeopardized.

Ontario's war industries are over 90 per cent electrified. They rely on Hydro to provide the power needed to produce the weapons for our armed forces. Keeping the wheels of our factories turning during this critical period has been the prime consideration of Hydro . . . in the future much of this same electrical energy will be available to manufacture time and labour saving devices that will contribute in no small measure to an improved way of living in the better days ahead. Plan now to enjoy the advantages that the greater use of Hydro will bring to you in the peaceful days to come.

Flying Officer Robert Reuben Rush, D. F. C. of Toronto, is the brother-in-law of Mrs. A. Davis, N. Rush, S. Rush, Mrs. B. Wilson, Mrs. L. Harris, and Mrs. S. Barsky, of Toronto; B. Rush, of Kapuskasing, Ont.; and Mrs. D. Lerman, of Rome, N. Y. The following letter to Mrs. Barsky, 105 Lonsdale Drive, Toronto, is from Air Minister Charles G. Power:

Dear Mrs. Barsky:

I am writing to say how much all ranks of the R. C. A. F. join me in warmly congratulating you and the members of your family on the honour and distinction which have come to your brother, Flying Officer Robert Reuben Rush, D. F. C., through the award of the Distinguished Flying Cross for great gallantry in the performance of his duty while serving with No. 405 Squadron of the R. C. A. F. The citation on which this award was made reads as follows:

"This officer was the navigator of an aircraft which attacked Berlin one night in January, 1944. On the return flight the aircraft was hit by anti-aircraft fire, and a little later was attacked by a fighter. In the action Flying Officer Rush was wounded in the arm and the back. Although suffering from loss of blood and pain, this gallant navigator continued his duties until the mission was ended. He displayed great fortitude, determination and devotion to duty in trying circumstances."

The personnel of the Force are proud of your brother's fine service record.

received it. The two tablets which Moses carried down to the waiting Israelites merely formulated the intuitions graven already on the tablets of their hearts. They were not a dower from without, but a development from within.

What a profound lesson! We shall never coerce a new order: we can only implant it. Law comes from without; order grows from within.

Today a so-called "new order" is being projected on the European continent, end to end. Instead of nurturing inner discipline first, and outer obedience afterwards, it regiments the body and leaves the soul in chaos. The scroll of history glitters with the now-departed splendor of such empires, that liberated their subjects from the inner law, urging them to kill and plunder and cover in order to bind the earth with an outer law.

Vast and hill states, where swarms of peons labored dumbly under their burdens; they decayed, because they transferred the ennobling discipline of toil to the slave. Marvellous war-machines, rolling triumphantly across the earth; they collapsed, because the spirit of their subjects never accepted the chains clamped upon their limbs. Majestic courts of law, reaching out through exile and armed garisons to the six continents; they thundered their command with force alone, so nothing in the soul made answer.

The "new order" of Hitler is an old disorder. The one-time rulers of Europe had an rendezvous with the future; they devote a gigantic edifice into the quicksand of spiritual lawlessness. But the liberating armies of the United Nations not toppled it to earth, the illusion of its spiritual blue-print would inevitably have encompassed its collapse.

But the new order will not be of the "Four Freedoms" unless either—without inner discipline! No matter what our material resources or military might! No matter how we praise freedom of speech, assembly, conscience, oneness and suffrage as against secret police and dungeons! We must also acquire a soul, as against the mindlessness of human ooze in a state dynamo. Our line of defense is the character of the every-day citizen, above all his own self-discipline, his ability to temper ambition with patriotism, prejudice with intelligence, and selfishness with sacrifice. ROSH HASHONAH GREETINGS is reaching up from the brute in man. Unless Canada clings to the Law Within and holds it above the wreck, mankind cannot be shielded from the flood.

Canada's job is to provide a moral substitute for the goose-step. The youth of the totalitarian states had been infected with a magnificent ardor. Their personal egos were absorbed in the service of the fatherland. Nothing exists —except its glamor and glory! . . . The democratic nations must show their young men and women that democracy is just as romantic and thrilling and glamorous, a peerless cause, a bright, compelling, sweet idea. The glassy eyes of a moon-struck, mechanical trooper, frozen in salute, cannot look victoriously into the dawn. Only the vision of lean, free men who know why they give themselves to country, whose outward allegiance reflects an inner discipline, only that glance can peer into the sunrise.

What creed can more genuinely dedicate itself to unveiling this vision than Judaism? Like our distant ancestors, before welcoming the Decalog, our experience and faith have revealed a way of living whereby men and women can enjoy the fruits of external freedom by eagerly accepting the restraints of internal discipline... Do you wish to serve the forces of freedom? Do you wish to build an impregnable moral bulwark against a renewal of the Nazi-Fascist counter-revolution? Then prove that man is capable of ruling himself!

In other words—and this is the third weapon of spiritual defense —we must retrieve our faith in the possibilities of man as a child of God. The divine possibilities in man!

The difference between the Christian and Jewish evaluation of human nature is always brought home to me when I recall the once-famous Billy Sunday revival-meetings. In my youth I often watched him flay the devil with athletic enthusiasm, under a huge tent, until a long line of sinners hit the sawdust trail, loudly proclaiming their conversion to righteousness. These recruits of the Lord supposedly had undergone a sudden, volcanic, emotional experience, which confronted them with a realisation of their sin-withered lives. That experience was induced from without. The grace of the Savior had vouchsafed it, to unbind them from the clutch of evil.

Contrast this with the Jewish technique as illustrated by the Ten Days of Penitence. The process of re-purifying is slow, patient, plodding. Man does not burgeon swiftly and dramatically into a cleansed, untainted soul. Nor does an outside force sustain him. He must rely on the spiritual resources of his own being. Redemption cannot be arrived at by miracle. It must be sweated for, with infinate labor and set-backs. Out of the depths, man thrusts his spirit upward, until it juts forth into the light!

Keats described life as a "vale of soul-making." Here is our most important business—to rebuild character on the fragments left by defeat and chaos. But it can be done! It can be done! Judaism insists that man carries within himself the germ of individual salvation, and the microcosm of a perfect society. A perfect world was not lost in the past by man's fall; it will be won in the future by man's rising.

What is the Messiah? An era in human history, when man, as co-worker with God, fashions his own dwelling-place into the habitation of justice and peace and love, when the godly qualities now dormant within him are awakened, when he becomes all that he can be. We are all tools of the Messiah. Every time we master an evil impulse, or give our hands to fellowship, or sustain by our little mite the forces of honor that still crouch in the gathering gloom, we become a vessel of salvation, and the Messianic footprints are imprinted in the mud behind us, for others to rejoice at and follow. What loftier rank can we claim? In the loam of every soul is the Messiah-seed!

Here is the most sublime victory of the human spirit—that from the inmost heart of darkness, such as Israel's harrowing history has never surpassed, we can still pluck the torch of faith in man. What do our fellowmen require more than this? What do our allies, the democratic, liberty-loving peoples of the earth, what do they need more than this? Hopefulness, courage, morale! Of course!

But these are inaccessible until the old Jewish doctrine sweeps through their camps, that God has not deserted humanity; His goal cannot be reached until humanity is ready for it. As Edmond Fleg wrote, "For Israel the world is not yet finished, man will complete it. For Israel man is not yet created; men are creating him."

Often the sight of our sad, war-weary, befouled world shrinks us into nothingness. We become obsessed by evil's magnitude. How can we, mere collocation of atoms, how can we impede the juggernaut! We are only bits of cork bobbing up and down on the inevitable wave of the future. (What a dire phrase that is!) But hope can be retained, in fact it leaps forward, when we recall that the inviolable Divine Spirit nestles expectantly within us, waiting to be aroused.

The final voice of God can be heard in the energized human will, moving into action. God is not merely the goal of our seeking, but a goal to our doing. He shares the suffering and struggle of men. "When man weeps, He also sheds tear." . . . A Partner who leads men into battle against the descending night, a Leader who strives with us, and within us, and through us, who uses our valor as the fabric for His Kingdom on earth! Captain, Lord of Hosts, beckoning us to the combat, and at the same time striding unbowed in our hearts and irradiating them with His indomitable will. . .

There is a will to believe. Unless the world, guided by Judaism, refuses to surrender its conviction that man can subdue the beast within him to the best within him, we shall snuff out the last guttering candle of hope, and the Dark Extends best wishes and many thanks for the continued patronage of his many Jewish friends.

Ages loom before us. Even the most liberal and realistic Christians, like Reinhold Niebuhr, are plunging again into a masochistic pessimism about human nature. "Original, ineradicable sinfulness enmeshes mankind. Deliverance can emanate only from mystic springs above. We are helpless and hopeless, mute putty in the hands of inscrutable fate! We can do nothing to re-form ourselves!"

This doctrine of disillusionment bears a dangerous resemblance to the totalitarian ideal. The Nazis also regard man as a will-less, mind-less, soulless marionette, dangling—in their scheme—under the manipulation of a demi-god. Israel, however, can brook no compromise. The conflict between Nazism and Judaism involves more than our current interests. It is our vision of man's destiny that we want to save! This, the spiritual attitude towards man, is the final fortress of civilization's defense. As long as we have not lost it, the best is not lost.

Think a moment! The innermost core of Nazism is its contempt for man. Human life is cheap therefore it can be degraded to the service of the idolized state. Human longing for worship is only an opportunity for exploitation and deceit—therefore the Fuhrer sets himself up as a god and his mouthings are exalted into sacred scripture. Human rights are only a phrase for propaganda—therefore innocent, sensitive people are thrown into dungeons and exiled to the four corners of the earth. Human ethics are no higher than tooth and claw—therefore avarice and vanity can be capitalized in every land, for treason to flag and God. Human sympathy and fellowship are a sickly vestige of Judeo-Christian slave inferiority—therefore iron and blood must rule the world. The human species is only a tool of arrogant cunning—not made to march under God toward perfection, but ordained to fatten and enrich the dictator who has enough daring to command it.

Between that self-disgust which flares out as hatred of mankind, and the Jewish love of man as a collaborator with God, there can be no negotiated armistice. If Israel, the prime victim of man's brutishness, can cling to trust in man's basic decency, it will bequeath to future ages the nourishment without which no sanity is possible on earth. . . .

The future is ominous. It must not find us unprepared. Unlike the famed sidewalk superintendents of New York, we will not watch languidly, leaning on a rail, as the mansion of civilized life is dismantled and wrecked. That mansion houses our own dreams and hopes; it has been and will be our dwelling-place. We shall try to sustain it, propping it up with our lives, if need be. If and as it crumbles, we shall build a habitation more abiding within, for refuge and solace, for armament and pride, as brave warriors of the Jewish spirit. Then nothing will dismay or destroy us. . . .

Constantine, the Roman Emperor, embraced Christianity, after a military triumph ushered in by the sign of the Cross in the heavens. What shall our banner be? The priestly blessing, which sums up our benediction upon humanity, wherein we pray for Divine illumination and for peace. The sign? A "Shin". For "Shaddai", Almighty! The living presence of the Lord of Hosts marching at our side into the battle!

Gaze upon the sign? The "Shin" is also a V. V for Victory! Inscribed in blood and tears, at the risk of the firing-squad, upon the tanks of the Nazi juggernaut. In Hebrew, an "mm" of "Nitsachon", on the eight-foot wall raised about the vast and ghostly ghetto of Poland which has now become the grave of Nazi ambition. In telegraphic code, three dots and a dash. Our victory will be gained only when we have taught our friends, and renewed in ourselves, the three invincible weapons of the spirit, unity, discipline and faith.

ports on finances and activities of all Canadian national and regional organizations seeking Welfare Fund support. These reports will be of invaluable aid to local budget or finance committees which have the task of evaluating each organization's needs in relation to each other and to community giving.

Many communities are finding that a Welfare Fund or Federation organization, is giving it perspective. They are looking at the whole picture of needs and fund-raising, instead of the individual parts. There is little doubt that the cessation of hostilities will bring new and tremendously increased problems to life in Canada. Returning veterans must fund their way back to active, useful life; women in industry will be returning to home-life, and young people who have found unforetold independence through War jobs will have to adjust to more normal ways of living.

All of these problems will have to be met; but in addition to these local problems, the Jewish community will have to meet the challenge of rehabilitating their fellow Jews who have survived the persecutions and tortures of the Nazis. It will take resourcefulness to meet this challenge, and Welfare Funds with their established programs of budgeting and planning, and their fund-raising departments, will be ready to serve their communities well.

Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Fund, National Office, 165 West 46th Street, with a total of 225 affiliated communal agencies, representing 220 cities in the United States and Canada, helps to organize the resources of each community to meet effectively local, regional, national and overseas Jewish needs. The annual general assembly and regional conferences of the Council bring together national, local, lay and professional Jewish leaders to exchange experiences, discuss common problems and co-ordinate their planning and activities in welfare work and Jewish group organization.

Affiliated in Canada are the Jewish Federation of Edmonton; the Jewish Administrative Council and Jewish External Welfare of Vancouver; the Jewish Welfare Fund of Winnipeg; the United Jewish Welfare Fund and the Jewish Social Service of Hamilton; United Jewish Welfare Fund of Toronto; the United Jewish Welfare Council of Windsor; the Jewish Welfare Fund of Guelph; the Jewish Federation of St. Catherines; and the Federated Jewish Charities of Kitchener.

its have been affected. To help provide an adequate balance, and it was an obligation eagerly undertaken, the Y once more put its resources at the command of the membership. More activities, new ones, old ones revised, special ones created, successful ones maintained, even intensified, all in the same spirit of Y service.

This is the framework and the sketchy outline that brings us to the picture of tomorrow.

The Montreal Y.W.H.A. has an enrolled membership of fifty-three hundred civilians and twelve hundred men in the armed forces. The Y.W.H.A. has an enrolled membership of sixteen hundred. Nor are these 3100 members of the Montreal Jewish community the only ones who will wish to participate in the program and use the facilities of a Y that was designed in 1929 to serve no more than 1500 to 2000 members. The community is therefore to be congratulated that it will be able to respond to the building fund campaign which has succeeded so magnificently. The present building on Mount Royal Avenue will consequently be enlarged by additions which will provide more club room space, more gymnasium facilities in many directions. The new building, to be erected in another area of the city in that it will serve a large Jewish population, will be a complete unit building and all outdoor play facilities.

Both buildings will be under the new regime of Y.M. and Y.W.H.A. for life in our society has brought a meeting of the areas in many non-business profession government, education, social, communal, etc. etc. What more natural than that tomorrow we shall be a combined Y.M.-Y.W.H.A., one Board, one staff and one program, and that men and girls, men and women shall meet constantly and naturally under one roof. This advance has been achieved in principle and will be realized in fact very much.

These new buildings and a new regime mean much more, however than appears on the surface. The Y.M.-Y.W.H.A. is serving Montreal's Jewish Community Center, serving as a metropolis as well as a neighborhood. The Y will be drawn very close to Jewish community life, as from the Y will radiate strength to support every form of Jewish community life. We [illegible]

the values of our total civilization, our tradition, folk way, folk lore, religion, history, literature, music, drama, art, language, nationalism i.e. Zionism. The Y. must complement all the other formal and informal areas of education in the community such as synagogue, Hebrew School, Yiddish school and the like. The Y. must play its part in giving every Jew of the community, of whatever status, background, age or sex, the opportunity to find deeper satisfaction in living as Jews.

(2) We must learn to live as citizens of this great Canadian democracy. This is not an idle statement. People must actually go through this learning process too. Living in a democracy does not mean only the privileges of a free life, of social, political and economic democracy. It means also the obligations that come with the privilege. As citizens of Canada we must help to create and to maintain, to strengthen and to intensify the democratic way of life. We must be informed, we must be alert, we must be courageous.

The Y. has a great obligation in this direction. It is, by its very structure, a symbol of that democracy. It has had, does have, and will have a virile program of small group activity which provides one of the finest opportunities for learning the magnificent lessons of democratic living.

(3) The Y. is a strand in the fabric of the Jewish community. There are even those who believe that as the fabric takes form the Y. will be seen as one of the dominant strands. This is good because the Y. is a democratic institution, because it cuts across all lines and is a unifying influence in the Jewish community, because its position in favour of Jewish group survival is unequivocal, and because it encourages just as strongly our participation in the Canadian scene.

This is good also because the Y. leadership recognizes that one strand or two, even dominant ones, do not make a fabric. That fabric will have strength and virility in which each of its strands has strength. The Y. sees its obligation to help strengthen the very fabric, the total community, its social work agencies, synagogues, schools, various Zionist groups, fraternal organizations, etc., etc. We strengthen the Y. itself so that we may the better serve the community.

(4) Not only must the individual synthesize his life as Jew and as Canadian citizen, but collectively we must harmonize our need for Jewish group survival and the integration of the Jewish group into Canadian society. This point of view must be clearly interpreted in theory and in practice not only within the Jewish group but to our Christian neighbours. There are a variety of organizations within the Jewish community that are equipped to do so. Among them is the Y., which is particularly well fitted to do so among those community and government agencies with whom it has an almost daily contact.

In a world which is being reshaped; in a society which is developing new patterns, the Jewish community, too, must have flexibility. Many have been the changes within this last generation. The very fluid nature of life itself points to changes still unseen. The courage to face the unknown unflinchingly comes with preparedness in spirit and in fact. The Y. faces its obligations of the present and the morrow with courage, for its history is glorious, its hopes unbounded, its philosophy is sound, its function is selfless.

nomic adjustment has not been matched with developments in Jewish communal activity in the fields of social, cultural and religious functions, or in the more general areas which are commonly designated as community organization. An analysis of the background and structure of the Jewish populations in Central and South America, will give an insight into the problems of their communal life and reveal some of the reasons for their lag in community organization.

The typical Jewish community in Latin America consists of three groups: the Sephardim, the East-Europeans and the Central-Europeans. As indicated above the present-day Sephardim arrived in Latin American countries some 40 or 50 years ago. Many of them spoke Spanish prior to their arrival. The conditions they found in the Latin American countries were similar to those of their countries of origin. From the very start their assimilation in terms of language, social customs and adaptation to the local milieu has been relatively easy—almost too easy. Except for their synagogue and religious life there has been little to distinguish them from their non-Jewish neighbors. Despite the intensely religious spirit that prevails among them, their lack of spiritual leadership since their arrival has retarded their communal development. Even the synagogue, in which most of their activities are centered, has now lost much of its influence. The young people have received little or no Jewish education, and many of them have been lost to the Jewish faith. The few poor people among them—most of the Sephardim have made a satisfactory economic adjustment—have been taken care of in an unorganized manner. There has been no development of welfare agencies, except in one or two of the larger cities.

In practically all of the communities, however, the Sephardim have established social community centers that are usually housed together with synagogues. These centers have served to develop among them, despite their lack of a formal community organization for cultural-religious activities, a fairly strong spirit of solidarity and "belonging". More recently, however, the older and a few of the more alert younger lay leaders in some of the communities, have become concerned about the decline in synagogue affiliation and religious observance. They are now seeking religious and educational leadership to offset the growing tendency toward assimilation.

The first arrivals of the East-European Jews in Latin America (beginning in the 1890's) were directed there by the Jewish Colonization Association, which aided in their settlement on farm land in Argentina and Brazil. The bulk of the East-Europeans, however, arrived during the decade following World War I. They originated largely from Poland, Lithuania, Russia and Roumania. Only a small proportion of them settled on land. In general they followed the pattern of adjustment of their landsleit in the U. S. A. Perforce they concentrated in the poorer sections of the large cities and supported themselves through whatever trade or skill they might have brought with them. Those who were lacking special skills or experience took up peddling, retail trade and small scale manufacturing of minor articles.

The East-Europeans, like the Sephardim, have assumed their proper places in the expanding economies of their new countries. However, since they arrived in large numbers within a short period of time, it was inevitable that many of them should be unable to adjust themselves to new conditions. To aid those in need, they have organized special societies and agencies. Obviously they have transplanted the organizational patterns of their countries of origin: a Bikur Cholim, a Chevra Kadisha, an Orphan Home, a Home for the Aged, and the like. There has been little or no effort made on their part to adapt these institutions to the local scene.

Such developments, of course, have taken place only in two or three of the larger cities of the major Latin American countries. In the smaller communities, and in countries like Ecuador, Colombia, Bolivia, Venezuela and Peru, organized Jewish life has been limited to the social center similar to that of the Sephardim. But, whereas the Sephardim regard the religious element as the core of their social center, the East-Europeans consider this element (where it is manifest) only a part of their center program. Many of the latter's social centers are housed in presentable buildings. However, their social and cultural programs have never reached the level of similar activities conducted by the Y's and Community Centers in the U. S. A.

The Sephardic and East-European Jewish groups have remained separate from each other. Differences in language and customs have made their association difficult. The sporadic efforts of community-minded leaders to bring the two together has met with no success. Their respective institutions have developed in different directions, without mutual contact. As a result, social distances, and even hostilities between the two groups have increased in the course of time, notwithstanding the pressing need for mutual co-operation.

These communities have not been able to offer much assistance to the newly arrived refugees. By way of contrast, the 900,000 or more refugees who have come in the past decade to the U. S. A. have been received by well-organized communities with a splendid system of social welfare agencies and institutions. They have found here a country that is very similar to their own in climate, culture and economic structure, a country where many relatives and friends had preceded them and paved the way. Many of the refugees had a previous knowledge of the English language, which was taught so extensively in Germany. In Latin America, on the other hand, the German Jewish refugees have found none of these advantages. The climate there is largely tropical. The cultural and economic milieu is substantially different from that of Central Europe. The language was new to practically all the arrivals. The social welfare institutions of the Jewish communities, even as these are, have been inadequate to meet the needs of the newcomers.

Such handicaps were hard to overcome, especially in communities [illegible] and [illegible] which had been [illegible] of even supporting the then small Jewish population. In [illegible] no example, there were [illegible] families [illegible] with [illegible] of which [illegible] of the estimated [illegible] Jewish population of Shanghai [illegible] with a [illegible] Eight millions of such [illegible] would be [illegible] of people who [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] city had been tapped to the utmost.

This was the situation that prompted the J. D. C., at the request and invitation of the Jewish communities, to extend its services to the Jewish refugees in Latin America. As in the U. S. A., it was necessary, in order to prevent their becoming public charges, to help these refugees adjust themselves to new conditions. That was the only way to keep the Latin American countries open as long as possible to the continued stream of victims of Nazi persecution.

Since 1936 the J.D.C., as stated above, has spent in these countries some $2,000,000 for refugee aid. Beyond the direct tangible results that this aid has produced for numerous individuals, the J. D. C. program has created community values which are perhaps even greater than the value of material aid. In line with its traditional policy, the J. D. C. has sought, as far as possible, to utilize existing agencies and facilities. Only when absolutely inevitable did it create new organizations, committees or institutions. Whether old or new, however, the various agencies have flourished through the impetus given to them by J. D. C.'s funds, by frequent consultation with its New York office, and more importantly, by the extended periodic visits of qualified American social workers who worked with the committees locally. In 1943 the J. D. C. established permanent headquarters in Buenos Aires to provide its affiliated Latin American Jewish committees with regular field service. This service is being made available also to the community as a whole wherever desired by the latter.

The initial efforts of the J. D. C. were largely in the area of direct relief. As the economic conditions of the Jewish refugees improved and their basic requirements of food, clothing, shelter and medical care were met, the program changed with an emphasis on rehabilitation. Credit cooperatives, vocational training programs, resettlement in rural areas, colonization, constructive loan activities and other projects, were embarked upon. In addition as much help as possible was given to cultural, religious, educational and organized youth activities.

These services have been rendered primarily to the refugees. However the entire program of rehabilitation has been on a scale that contributed to the development of the community as a whole, of which the refugees constitute a considerable segment.

While the new-comers have thus been organized their committees, the older Jewish settlers, both Sephardic and East European, have continued their internal welfare services for the needy of their respective groups. In some of the communities differences have been encountered between the new and the older committees as a result of their differences in standards and procedures. The standards have been higher among the new-comers who brought with them their experience with the typically well-organized Hilfsverein and Hemstade of Central Europe. Frequently the higher standards of social welfare have necessitated the creation of new machinery or agencies. Even in the larger communities the existing institutions have had neither the resources nor the confidence of the refugees to be able to meet the latter's needs effectively, although the older settlers have been very sympathetic toward their newly arrived co-religionists and eager to help them.

The leaderships of the newly created organizations were at first composed almost exclusively of the refugees from Central Europe. Here and there, as in the cases of Buenos Aires, Santiago, Rio de Janeiro and San Paulo, support and direction came from German-speaking Jewish settlers. Within the last two or three years, however, there has been a tendency to widen the representation in the new committees by including the leadership of the East-European and Sephardic communities. In most of the cities these committees have sought to extend their services and to increase the number of their contributors and support.

There has been a healthy tendency also among the latter communities to develop multiple services in place of the single-purpose institutions. Thus, the Asociación Filantrópica Israelita in Buenos Aires, a typical Sephardic community institution, has established a clinic, a social welfare department, a day nursery, a kindergarten, a Talmud Torah, a vocational training school, a library, a theatre, a sports club, and a publication. The Asociación Filantrópica Israelita has also established a Jewish Community Center, which is the first of its kind in Latin America. It has a membership of [illegible]

tion" in Montevideo and the Committee in Santiago, although these two are presently considering the extension of their services and facilities to the needy regardless of their countries of origin or date of arrival in the country. The possibilities of mergers of services and creation of community-wide boards of Directors are also being explored.

The following agencies, created or expanded through the J. D. C., illustrate the types of social welfare facilities that have been established in the various Latin American countries: a children's home in La Paz, Bolivia; a home for the aged in Cochabamba, Bolivia; the Credit Cooperative in Quito, Ecuador; a workshop manufacturing hemp and leather articles for export in Santo Domingo; the Maccabi youth organizations in Ecuador and Bolivia; the synagogues in Cali (Colombia), Rio de Janeiro and La Paz; a community kitchen (necessitated by the fuel shortage and high living costs) in Montevideo.

These instances do not exhaust the refugee aid program of the J. D. C. in Latin America. In all of the communities mentioned and in others not specified here, the subventions of the J. D. C. have covered the gamut of welfare activity. In effect there has been created a complete system of local refugee adjustment services.

Unfortunately, the division among the different elements comprising the Jewish population has continued despite these community welfare developments. In a few instances the very creation and growth of these programs, though necessary in themselves, have seemed ever to increase the gaps and to sharpen the differences.

At the same time there have been several hopeful trends toward unity or at least cooperation. The first is the development of Jewish youth organizations which enjoy a popular appeal. In La Paz, for example, the Maccabi—subsidized in part by the J. D. C.—is the fastest growing group in the country. It is the second in size of all the organizations. While primarily interested in athletics and sports it also conducts an extensive program of dramatics, lectures and a variety of other cultural activities. In Lima a similar organization has made ever greater progress. Youth organizations have also been developed in Cali and Bogota, Colombia, and other cities. The leadership of practically all of these groups is outstandingly effective and sound. In membership they have managed to cut across the country-of-origin lines which are so rigidly maintained by their elders. Their ability to cooperate regardless of differences in background, augurs well for their mutual relationships in the future as adults.

The second unifying force is the communal organization to combat anti-Semitism. It was during the same period of 1933-1942, that the efforts of the Nazis and fascists to penetrate Latin American countries were most pronounced. In many of these countries the Jewish communities, Sephardic, German and East-European alike, felt threatened by the increasing anti-democratic influences. As usual anti-Semitism was a major weapon in the arsenal of those who, with fascist objectives in view, had sought to gain or remain in power. Fortunately their propaganda has taken small root among the peoples of Latin America. Hence there has ben little anti-Semitism noticed in the everyday relationships between the Jews and their non-Jewish neighbors. In some countries, however, especially in the Argentine, there has been a persistent effort on the part of certain official circles to curtail the rights of the Jews, degrade their position, restrict their organizational activities, and generally impose upon them a status of second-class citizenship.

Although the Jews of Latin America live at peace with their non-Jewish neighbors, the spread of Anti-Semitism by Hitler's Agents among influential groups, has brought them great anxiety. Within the Jewish communities there has grown the realization that their internal conflicts and group divisions, accentuated by social cleavages, have made it impossible for them to combat effectively this insidious anti-Jewish propaganda. An awareness of the common fate to which they would be exposed as Jews, regardless of place of origin or date of immigration, had the Nazi propagandists gained their end, has compelled the Jewish leaders to get together. They have united at least on a minimum program of defense against defamation and on joint authoritative representation to their governments.

Out of these cooperative efforts in combating anti-Semitism grew the system of Jewish Daca (top) organizations which now prevail in most of the Latin American countries. In essence these organizations are equivalents of the Jewish Community Councils in the U.S.A. As in our country, they vary with each community in constituency, organizational form, functions and effectiveness. In Uruguay, for example, the Comite Central Israelita is constituted of the Kehilla or Genetide representatives of the four basic Jewish communities: the Sephardic, Hungarian, German and East-European. The individual agencies and institutions, as such, within each of these groups are not represented on the Comite Central.

In Argentina the top organization is the Delegation de Asociaciones Israelitas Argentinas (DAIA). It is composed of the representatives of all national and local Jewish organizations religious, cultural, social welfare, economic, health and educational, Zionist and other Jewish political groups. Altogether some sixty groups are thus represented. Each has an equal vote, regardless of size or status within the community. For example, the Chevra Kadisha of Buenos Aires, which has some 28,000 members and is the most influential Jewish institution in Argentina, has the same voting power in the DAIA as an organization with only a hundred members.

For one reason or another, apparently not traceable to differences in form or structure, the Argentine DAIA is much more active than the Comite Central in Uruguay. The former's leadership and authority in its primary functions—anti-defamation activities—are generally recognized and accepted. The Comite Central Israelita, on the other hand, although in form more democratic and in principle better organized for effective community as that of the DAIA.

Similar Comites Centrales have sprung up within the past few years in Chile, Colombia, Peru, Mexico and other countries. Through their efforts as coordinating bodies in the combating of anti-Semitism, they have succeeded in developing at least among the leaders a measure of mutual understanding and appreciation.

A third unifying force is the fairly strong federations of Zionist organizations that have developed in several countries. Zionism has been generally accepted by the great majority of Jews in Latin America. The Sephardim, Central-European and East-European Jews alike, have responded to the appeal for a national home-land in Palestine. The Zionist federations were formed through the

These two forces—the fear of assimilation on the one hand, and of anti-Semitism on the other—account to a considerable extent for the strong separatist [illegible] cultural tendencies of the various Jewish groupings as well as of the Jewish community as a whole. Each group seeks the security in numbers which come from asso-iation with one's own kind in background, language and culture. This has been the tendency of all immigrant groups in every country. It is especially marked in Latin America where, as indicated above, the social, cultural, political and economic patterns differ so greatly from those of the immigrants, except in the case of the Sephardim from the Mediterranean areas.

There has been a genuine effort on the part of the Jewish communities in Latin America to develop various means of 'Americanization', such as the study of the language (Spanish or Portugese) and history of their new countries. At the same time there has also been among them a well organized effort to retain and develop their old cultures in the Yiddish, or German language. They have a strong desire to maintain contacts with Jewries in other countries, especially with Jewish organizations in the U.S.A. They are hungry for books, journals and other sources of information that may come to them from abroad.

Representatives of institutions from other countries are received by them with open arms—even when they visit them for fund-raising purposes—not so much out of interest in the specific causes they represent, as out of eagerness to retain strong cultural ties with other Jewish communities. They also seek in the other communities rabbis, teachers and social welfare workers to fill their religious, educational and welfare needs. In this respect they are particularly solicitous of help from American Jewry.

It is of interest to note that in religious affiliation and practice, practically all Latin American Jews, the Sephardim as well as the Ashkenazim, are orthodox. Although few of them observe in private the basic tenets of orthodox Judaism, they all want to retain its spirit and practice in the synagogue.

The J. D. C.'s program of assistance in the adjustment of the refugees in Latin America included provision for their cultural and religious needs, and where local resources are lacking, the cultural program is being continued.

On the whole, Jewish life in Latin America today presents a growing, dynamic force among the remaining Jewish communities in the free countries of the world. Despite serious internal difficulties and splits, despite the great odds against individual economic adjustment, and notwithstanding other handicaps, the Jewish communities in Latin America are prepared to participate actively and substantially in the tremendous tasks that the free Jewries the world over will be called upon to perform, the tasks of meeting the problems of post-war relief, rehabilitation and construction of their war-stricken brethren overseas.

HELP KEEP DOWN LIVING COSTS!

Under war-time conditions, spending for unnecessary things helps to increase their price. If you buy things already scarce you make them scarcer —and dearer.

Here are the principal reasons for war-time SAVING:

1) Financing the war
2) Keeping prices down
3) Providing for the future

By faithfully saving, you will help provide for Canada's security today and your own security tomorrow.

Canadian Friends Of The Hebrew University Greet The New Year

By Allan Bronfman, of Montreal, National President

As national president of the Canadian Friends of The Hebrew University, I take this opportunity to extend greetings to all our Canadian Friends.

It is but a few months since this organization has been established on a national basis, but in that short space of time it has met with a warm response throughout the Dominion and has already enrolled on its roster the leading citizens of every community where local chapters have been established.

The main function of the "Friends" is to ensure the participation of Canadian Jewry in the maintenance of the only Hebrew University in the world, which has been acclaimed by outstanding scientists and statesmen for its splendid achievements in the spheres of science and learning, its outstanding contributions to the war effort, the saving from Nazi-Fascist countries of some of the greatest scientists in the world, and its share in the progress and development of Palestine. In the words of Albert Einstein, "The Hebrew University stands in the first rank. Our own sense of self-respect and dignity must impel us to vigorous support of our University".

Support for this great seat of learning and research is more than ever vital at this time when so many countries which formerly gave their financial help are, on account of the war, prevented from doing so. Canada which, it is conceded, is far behind in its support for this cause, now has an opportunity to assume its share of responsibility and pride in the progress and development of the Hebrew University.

In the establishment of the Canadian Friends of The Hebrew University, leaders in Canadian Jewry from all sections of the country have taken an active and important part. In a remarkably short space of time, there has thus been achieved a nation-wide Organization with representatives from all parts of Canada.

Enrollment of members, both men and women, is in progress and in the various Canadian communities large numbers of our Jewish citizens have rallied to its support. I am sure that many more, recognizing the importance of the world role which the University is bound to play on behalf of our people and desiring to have a part in this vital and significant work, will wish to be counted among the friends and members of an institution which has been termed by Thomas Mann "the heart of the cultural and national life of a people".

Greetings for the New Year and a prayer for early victory and lasting peace!

Card Of Thanks
